A VIRTUAL TOUR D' ARTS

GLENDALÉ, Ariz. – Take a walk on the art side... on and off line.

Glendale's website now features an interactive art tour, which allows visitors at the site to learn more about Glendale's many public art displays and to find out where to see them in person.

Online visitors will begin the virtual tour by selecting from a variety of images of the city's art works. Clicking on a photo reveals information about that particular piece, including its location, interesting facts about the artist and fun art trivia that you won't find anywhere else.

An easy-to-read map is available, showing the locations of the city's various public displays. A printable version of the map can be downloaded from the site.

Glendale's Public Art Program is designed to increase the public's awareness and appreciation of art. With the leadership of the City Council, the Glendale Arts Commission developed a public artwork program in 1983, making Glendale the first city in Arizona to establish a publicly funded art project.
